

Mingulay Boat Song

Heel y' ho, boys,
Let her go, boys,
Bring her head round into the weather,
Heel y' ho, boys,
Let her go, boys,
Sailing homeward to Mingulay.

1. What care we how white the Minch is?
What care we for wind or weather?
Let her go boys! every inch is
Sailing homeward to Mingulay.
2. Wives are waiting by the pier head,
Or looking seaward, from the heather;
Pull her round, boys, then you'll anchor
'Ere the sun sets on Mingulay.
3. Ships return now, heavy laden
Mothers holdin' bairns a-cryin'
They'll return, though, when the sun sets
They'll return home to Mingulay.

The western cliffs, Mingulay, near to Dùn Mhiùghlaigh. The stack of Arnamuil is in the centre and Bagh na h-Aioneig to on the left.

Notes:

The Mingulay Boat Song was written in 1928 by Sir Hugh Robertson \(1874–1952\), who arranged and conducted songs for his Glasgow choir.

It is in the style of Hebridean work songs.

The tune is based upon, Creag Guanach, part of an old Gaelic song, "Oran na Comhachaig" from Brae Lochaber, in the Scottish highlands. [\[Wikipedia\]](#)

Place names

Mingulay - Scottish island in the Outer Hebrides, 12 miles south of Barra (see map). It has been uninhabited since 1912 and has been owned by the National Trust for Scotland since 2000; it is of course a haven for bird life.

Mingulay written in gaelic is Miughalaigh.

This should be pronounced either "Minch Gala" [Ian Chandler, Mudcat] or "Miew-haligh" [\[Akerbeltz, gaelic linguist, Wikipedia\]](#)
Note the wikipedia mis-quotes the song chorus.

Minch - the treacherous body of water between the Outer Hebrides or Western Isles and the rest of Scotland, including the Inner Hebrides.

How white the Minch is... refers poetically to rough sea (cf white horses).
